

BRUTE FORCE THEIR WEAPON

decided to do no business until the opinion of the Attorney-General was presented, and to adjourn until Monday night. As the Adriain Senators do not constitute a quorum, they can only adjourn from day to day, so every day except Sunday one Senator will assemble himself together and adjourn. This will go on until Monday night, when other Democrats will assist him. The motion of adjournment as put by Adriain was, therefore, that the Senate do now adjourn until to-morrow at

SENATOR ADRIAN.

10 o'clock. When this motion was put down after the body was called to order, a voice from the gallery shouted: "Oh, you'd better give it up!" and the remark was followed by a derisive laugh from the crowd. Mr. Adriain then declared himself and his colleagues adjourned.

LATEST PLAN OF THE ADRIAN SENATE.

The last plan of the Democrats as stated to-day is as follows: There are not enough Democratic Senators to constitute a quorum, and therefore, even if the Attorney-General approves their position, they cannot do business unless one of the holdover Republican Senators attend. It is, therefore, proposed to send Michael Nathan, who is sergeant-at-arms of the Adriain Senate, to arrest Senator Skirm, of Mercer, and bring him to the Senate. Colonel Skirm is selected because he lives at Trenton, and can easily be found. If Senator Skirm, as he will, denies the authority of Nathan and has him arrested for assault, a writ of habeas corpus will be at once obtained, and the whole question of authority be brought at once before the courts. The matter may be brought at once to the court in another way, for when the Sergeant-at-Arms and his assistants were put out of the Senate chamber during it was their intention to procure warrants for the arrest of Nathan and his assistants for assault.

To-night the several Republican Senators are with the people who elected them to tell how they have been refused admission to the Senate to which they were elected. To-night Democratic conspirators are trying to think of some new scheme for delaying the sure retribution which is overtaking them, and to devise new methods for thwarting the will of the people.

ONE DEFENDER OF THE TRENTON OUTRAGE.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The New-Jersey members of Congress were naturally greatly interested yesterday in the dispatches which told the story of the organization of two Senates at Trenton. Representative Cornish was the only one who came out squarely in defense of the action of the Democrats, his opinion being that they were in the right and were carrying out the letter of the Constitution. Representative Cadmus thought the action of the Democrats was unwise. "It would have been best, I think," he said, "to have let the Republicans take control and oust all the Democrats if they wanted to, for there would have been a reaction against such proceedings, and we should have been sure to have the people on our side in the election. The Democrats would certainly have worked all the harder to achieve a victory." Representative Fielder expressed virtually the same opinion, and Representative English, while he is thought to hold the same view, simply stated that he had been busy with the tariff and other matters that had delayed his return home. Representative Dunn also evaded a direct answer, by saying that he had not read the published accounts of the proceedings.

TIME TO STOP IT EFFECTUALLY.

From the Elizabeth Journal. To meet this condition of affairs with irreconcilable compromises and to submit to delays and further defeat in the Senate is such a grave mistake that it is time such work is stopped; time that the men who stopped suddenly and effectively the work of the people shall be held responsible. The punishment and punishment will swiftly follow, now that they have resolved to open the eyes and reckless, revolutionary measures. We have undoubtedly seen the last of New-Jersey as a Democratic "Gibraltar."

MCKANESE CANNOT SURVIVE.

From the Commercial Advertiser. It is a slight consolation that no party ever succeeds by crooked and dishonest methods. McKane is a scoundrel to survive in New-Jersey. The Democratic racetrack gamblers, ballot thieves and treasury looters who have long ruled New-Jersey have been repudiated by the holdovers of the Senate. The punishment and punishment will swiftly come.

WITH THE GOVERNOR'S SANCTION.

From the Newark Advertiser. No State in the Union has ever witnessed such disgraceful scenes of riot and revolution as those which occurred at the State House in the year 1844, when the Legislature was in session. Executive Chamber of Governor Werts, and under conditions which never could have existed without the sanction of the Governor.

THEY SHOULD THINK OF NEW-YORK.

From the Brooklyn Eagle (Dem.). Before they carry out their purposes they should think seriously of the fate which overtook the Democratic party in the State of New-York, which got into power in 1844, and is such a grave unsuccess that it is hard to believe that it is stopped suddenly and effectively the work of the people shall be held responsible. The punishment and punishment will swiftly follow, now that they have resolved to open the eyes and reckless, revolutionary measures. We have undoubtedly seen the last of New-Jersey as a Democratic "Gibraltar."

NO COMPROMISE POSSIBLE.

From the New-York Press. There is not the slightest occasion or excuse for the Republican Senate of New-Jersey to make any compromise with the Democratic body coming itself to power. The Republicans are not to be blamed for this. The Senate, and should not permit themselves to be worried, deceived or cajoled into surrender to the men who are adding a finishing touch to the already notorious reputation of the New-Jersey Democracy.

OBITUARY.

MISS ELLA WOOD.

Miss Ella Wood, who died at her home, No. 45 West Sixtieth-st., on Wednesday, was one of the best-known educational workers in this country. She was born at Newburg, N. Y., and in 1859 entered Vassar College. From this institution she graduated with high honors in 1875. She contributed to "The Vassar Miscellany" and had much to do in establishing a good reputation for the paper. Soon after her graduation she was placed in charge of a school for girls at Springfield, Mass. Benjamin Warner and other prominent citizens of the town had united in causing Miss Wood to head the school, and the result showed her choice to be a wise one. She devoted her efforts to preparing young girls for the courses at Vassar and other colleges, and her pupils took high rank at the institutions they attended. She was thoroughly devoted to her work, and at all times her pupils were won over to her influence. She induced many girls which usually exists between teacher and scholars, and by her strong individuality won the confidence, esteem and love of all her scholars.

A few years ago she was forced by domestic considerations to return to her home in Newburg, and there she took a much-needed rest. In 1881 she came to New-York, and became a teacher in Miss Adriain's school, which she left until her death. She remained here, however, which usually exists between teacher and scholars, and by her strong individuality won the confidence, esteem and love of all her scholars.

Her novel, "A Foolish Virgin," which was the first American novel to appear in Harper's Franklin Square Library, attracted much attention, but however, did not present her fortunes in a favorable light. She induced many girls which usually exists between teacher and scholars, and by her strong individuality won the confidence, esteem and love of all her scholars.

The funeral will be held this morning at the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Incarnation. The burial takes place at Newburg. The Associated Alumnae of Vassar College, the pupils of the Brown School and the trustees and officers of Barnard College will attend the funeral.

SAMUEL R. PULLEN.

Samuel R. Pullen, a well-known resident of White Plains, Westchester County, for many years, died at his home in that place yesterday, in his eighty-first year. He was born at Somersworth, in Westchester County, and when a young man was employed by Rufus Story, who had a grocery business at Vandam and Hudson sts., where he remained after the Civil War, in the wholesale pork packing business in Tentative, and later entered into partnership with George Craig & Co. He resided in Texas and western states, and traveled extensively for twenty-five years, and was removed to White Plains, where he was one of the founders of the Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church, and a trustee of the church for forty years. He took an active interest in public affairs. He was one of the largest stockholders in the Citizens' Bank and Company, and a member of the White Plains Bar. He leaves a wife and daughter, Mrs. Edward R. Phelps. In politics he was uncompromisingly Republican, having voted for General Fremont in 1856, and for Lincoln in 1860, and for Hayes in 1876. He was a member of the Memorial Methodist Episcopal Church at White Plains, on Sunday at 2 p. m.

SAMUEL ATWATER.

Samuel Atwater, former president of the Board of Trade and one of the leading merchants of Newark, died at his home, No. 106 Broad-st., in that city, late on Wednesday night, after an illness of several weeks, from enlargement of the liver, stomach and heart. He was born in this State in 1823. In the Administration of President Fillmore he was appointed postmaster of Kingsbridge, and held the office for three years. After this he was a member of the New York Legislature, and was re-elected in the following year. For six years he was also a member of the Newark Board of Trade. He hoped that organization and up to the time of his death was one of its leading members. Mr. Atwater's business career was as successful as his political career. He was a partner of Frederick A. Carter, who started the retail grocery firm now known as Atwater & Carter, and conducted the business to the time of his death. Recently the concern was sold to Messrs. M. A. Atwater and his son, Samuel, and Frederick, a brother and his husband and his wife being taken in as stockholders. Mr. Atwater was a former ardent champion of the Know-Nothing party. He retired with his family this evening at 8 o'clock at the Scottish Rite Hall. He was a member of several Masonic bodies.

FITCH SMITH.

Fitch Smith, who died yesterday in Birmingham, Conn., in the eighty-eighth year of his age, was formerly a partner in the firm of Smith, Wright & Co., well-known saddle manufacturers in New Haven, Conn., and was a member of the firm for sixteen years ago, when he had since lived, and had been for many years a prominent citizen. He was married with many of the early enterprises that have largely contributed to the success of Birmingham. MRS. WILLIAM M. THACKERAY.

London, Jan. 11.—The widow of William Makepeace Thackeray died this morning at Leigh, Lancashire, aged seventy-five years. She had lived in retirement at Leigh for nearly forty years. For years before Thackeray's death little was ever heard of his wife. She was confined in a lunatic asylum, and her malady threw a heavy cloud over the last years of her husband's life. Since Thackeray's death she has settled herself in a quiet, comfortable house near Leigh, and has been a constant source of anxiety to many of his friends. Her widow's name is Mary, and the general public believed that she was dead. Thackeray died on December 24, 1863.

EDWIN SHERMAN.

The funeral of Edwin Sherman, who died Tuesday at No. 23 Jefferson-ave., Brooklyn, was conducted last evening. Mr. Sherman was born in 1811, and was descended from Roger Sherman. His family and friends are of the leading Republicans of the place. His eldest son, Colonel John M. Sherman made the voyage around Cape Horn to the Pacific coast in 1859. He was a member of the firm of Kemp, Day & Co. in the same capacity as his father. Mr. Sherman belonged to the Society of Old Brooklynes, the New-England Society, the Bryant Club and the Masonic order.

CAPTAIN WILLIAM MULFORD.

Captain William Mulford, one of the oldest residents of Roselle, N. J., who had lived for over half a century, died yesterday at his home. He was eighty-six years old. Captain Mulford, for many years, was foreman of engineers in the iron works at Roselle, and one of the leading Republicans of the place. His eldest son, Colonel John M. Mulford, who was road foreman of engineers for a quarter of a century for the New-Jersey Central Railroad, was born in 1826. He was one of the earliest members of Washington Lodge of Freemasons at Elizabeth. He leaves one son.

DANBURY LOSES A LARGE HAT FACTORY.

Danbury, Conn.—The hat manufacturers have begun to move out of Danbury. Becker & Son, who have a large number of employees, and others, have moved to New Haven. The reduction in prices of hats has been so great that many of the old hat factories have closed down. The Danbury factory, which had been in operation for over forty years, is now a mere shadow of its former self.
